“Banner ads... aren't about generating sales or clicks, they are forms of brand reinforcement. Banner ads are grossly undervalued... they are far more valuable than text ads as branding tools.”

- Emmet Ryan, Editor, Sunday Business Post

Books Ireland magazine, est. 1976, is the country’s longest running book magazine and is deeply committed to supporting and representing all areas of literature and publishing. Published 6-times a year, this full-colour, 68 page publication is packed with reviews, features, news and listings from the latest offerings on the Irish literary scene.

A proud member of Magazines Ireland and Publishing Ireland, Books Ireland is the only publication of its kind in the marketplace, specifically focusing on Irish-published, Irish-authored and Irish-interest books. It provides an essential platform for showcasing Irish books, book-related products, news and events to a keenly interested and discerning book buying and reading audience. Books Ireland lists and reviews circa 1,000 new Irish books each year and is a valuable literary resource for writers, readers, publishers and anyone with an interest in Irish books.

Now available in digital format and via mobile app:

“75% of magazine readers generally like advertising and are receptive to it. They are engaged with the reviews and say they have a major influence on their purchasing decisions.” - Magazines Ireland, 2018.
